WHAT: San Francisco Playhouse will present the World Premiere of Chloé Hung's *Perfect Daughter, a gripping, high-tech thriller about artificial intelligence disrupting a father-daughter relationship. This prescient play follows a father who enlists a scientist to build the adult daughter of his dreams, creating and adjusting an AI version of her in a lab. But as each iteration falls short of his expectations, their experiments take increasingly unsettling turns. What seems like a classic father-daughter drama turns darker, resulting in an ominously of-the-moment exploration of the complexities of cultural expectations, intergenerational trauma, and the delicate balance of parent-child relationships. A recipient of IAMA Theatre Company's The Shonda Rhimes Unsung Voices Commission, the play previously received a reading at IAMA's New Works Festival. Perfect Daughter also received Theatre Bay Area's 2026 Rella Lossy Award, which recognizes a World Premiere full-length play by an emerging playwright to be presented on a Bay Area stage.
